Protect Yourself from Abuse

If you are - or suspect you are - in an abusive relationship, there are steps you can take to help ensure your safety

- In a heated situation, stay away from the kitchen - reportedly one of the most common places for domestic violence - where there are too many potential weapons. Also avoid any small rooms, such as bathrooms or closets, where you can be trapped.
- Call 911 as soon as possible.
- Get medical help as soon as possible if you've been hit.
- Take photos of any injuries to yourself or your children.
- Try to keep a phone with you at all times, and memorize emergency phone numbers
- Set up a system with a trusted neighbor - such as flashing your porch lights on and off - to alert her that you're in danger and you want her to call the police.
- Keep a small suitcase packed for yourself and your children, with key documents like your Social Security card, health insurance card and driver's license.
- If you're being stalked, get an unlisted phone number, screen all your calls, and frequently change your driving times, routes and other daily habits.
- Alert the security officer at your workplace if you think you're in danger.
